

Lynn Institute's clinical studies

The Lynn Institute, 41 Montebello, serves the local community by conducting medical research which enhances the understanding, treatment and prevention of common medical conditions through pharmaceutical trials.

"Our company provides medical treatment for people who are not getting relief from their current medication and for those people who cannot afford to pay for medical treatment," said a spokesperson.

"All the trials we conduct are completely free of charge to participants, including physician visits and medication. In addition we pay participants $50 per study visit for their time and travel."

All of the clinical trials are closely monitored by the FDA and the pharmaceutical company overseeing the trial.

The professional staff consider these questions prior to a subject being selected for a study:

- Is a patient getting adequate relief from current medication?
- Does a prospective patient meet the protocol requirements set forth by the pharmaceutical company conducting the study?

• Will a prospective patient benefit from this form of treatment?

• Does this patient need medical treatment?

• Has it been at least 30 days since the patient last participated in a research study?

• Does this patient understand clinical research?

• Does our patient want to increase his or her quality of life?

• Does our patient need medical care that they cannot afford?

For more information, contact Courtney Manning, (405) 602-3935.

DigiCare: for better hearing

It's the noble goal of DigiCare Hearing and Rehabilitation to be the community source for education and knowledge of all things related to hearing health.

For 32 years, DigiCare Hearing and Rehabilitation has provided clients with innovative and affordable hearing healthcare, as well as information on protecting hearing.

The experts at DigiCare strive to awaken and motivate those suffering with the silent handicap of hearing loss" to seek out the best service.

There are two components to the company: The "Digi" represents cutting-edge and advanced while the "care" reflects the ethical, caring disposition of the staff.

"We have the customer's best interest at heart," said a spokeswoman. "We create long-term relationships with customers and their families, based on hearing health."

DigiCare's practice is unique in that a wide range of services are available under one roof:

- hearing and speech evaluation;
- auditory rehabilitation;

occupational therapy; hearing aid manufacturing; earmold lab services; all-make hearing aid repair direct to the consumer; and research and education.

You can enter the building with a problem, have it properly diagnosed, receive therapy and/or an aid, and be out the door.

There is no middle man, thereby saving the client time and money.

And as far as the staff, the education, training and experience members have attained make DigiCare's personnel some of the finest anywhere.

Call 676-3277 to learn more.

Giacamo's an Italian tradition

Continued from Page 54

And for the lunch crowd, meals start at $4.99.

Since Pueblo is well known for its many unique dishes, local flavor always is incorporated into Giacomo's cuisine.

All dinners include relish tray soup, salad and garlic bread. Pasta entrees include a meatball or sausage.

Other entrees include a choice of baked or mashed potato, French fries, cottage cheese, rice, spaghetti or fettuccine.

Whether it is for romance, a special celebration, or just some time to relax, you will enjoy both the ambiance and the value of your total experience at Giacomo's.

Have a large group? Reserve the banquet room for your special occasion.

"The tradition continues," said owner Burt Boston. "And that means great food, atmosphere and service."

Call 546-0949.